Elementary and Early Childhood Education (EECE)

Stand out in the crowd! One size does not fit all when it comes to preparing for a teaching career in the 21st century. At Penn State, you'll work with knowledgeable faculty and staff to customize your Pre-K-4 program.

About our program ...

• This work is situated in a supportive community of practice that includes distinguished faculty, experienced mentors, and knowledgeable supervisors who work together to bridge educational theory and powerful teaching practices.

• Coursework in the major is organized into blocks of small, cohort-based classes that offer in-depth learning opportunities.

• High-quality field experiences are embedded in our coursework, and culminate with student teaching. Select from a variety of student teaching placements, including study abroad, the award winning Professional Development School (PDS) Partnership, and working with culturally and linguistically diverse students in urban settings.

• Customize your degree program. Skilled advisers can help you plan for a minor in Special Education, credentials for teaching English as a Second Language, and much more.

• Courses are taught in newly renovated, state-of-the-art studios and teaching laboratories.

• Students have the opportunity to live with other first-year students studying within the College of Education through the Special Living Options offered by the Housing Office.

• Enhance your educational experience by joining clubs and organizations specifically available for those preparing to be professional educators.
