MEET KATO

Kato is a Paterno Fellow majoring in English and Psychology with a minor in French and Francophone Studies.

Kato spent his first two years of college at Penn State York before continuing his education at Penn State University Park. One of his favorite experiences as a Penn State student has been working closely with his 400-level English professors as he works on his honors thesis. Through the Paterno Fellows Program, he spent a semester studying in France.

“The Paterno Fellows Program encouraged me to study abroad. It also helped motivate me to master the French language even prior to leaving for France and led to an experience that I will never forget. The Paterno Fellows Program also required that I take a number of ethics courses, many of which helped to inform me on issues of gender, race, and ability.”
